The mission of the ICPC is "To engage in cross-system collaboration by improving interagency communication, developing child friendly policies and practices and initiating systems changes that result in safe, healthy and thriving children and families throughout Alameda County.

The ICPC is comprised of several County agencies to create results based accountability programs that will positively impact children in Alameda County. The ICPC framed their work with children around three (3) areas: Healthy, Safe and Thriving. The ICPC developed strategies for school readiness, child hood obesity and high school success.

The ICPC recommends that the Health Committee: 1) Confirm and validate ICPC's Results Based Accountability (RBA) approach toward improving outcomes for children; 2) Identify regular ways to update the Board of Supervisors and 3) consider how to support the implementation of some of the program recommendations.

The ad hoc Committee will meet again on March 18, 2015 to discuss the Brown Act, outside consultant engagement and to review past plans and discuss expanded areas of consideration.
