Speak Up and Be Heard

Become involved with improving the outcomes for youth on probation and involved in the foster care system.

Many of our young people have:

- Experienced trauma
- A history in the foster care system
- Involvement with the juvenile justice system
- Been represented at an alarming rate and spend a longer time in juvenile hall than other youth

Voice your Opinion!

Because it takes a village!

Positive Youth Justice Initiative (PYJI), a collaboration led by the Alameda County Probation Department in partnership with community based agencies in designing and implementing a series of policy and institutional changes based on Trauma Informed Care and Positive Youth Development. The objective of this community forum is to provide information on new programs and services as well as to have the community voice heard as these changes develop.
