“My artwork illustrates historical events, current affairs, stories and folktales. The inspiration for my work stems from my culture which is rich with stories about good and not so good, kindness and selfishness, fate and determination, timeliness and tardiness, and many other lessons of life.”

Mr. Adejare has studied formally with celebrated artists but his introduction to art was the African crowns of colorful beads created by his great-great-grandfather. Mr. Adejare’s art takes many forms including pen-and-ink drawing, batik and rice paper painting, quilting, as well as his own technique, plywood etching.
