The Alameda County Registrar of Voters Office released updated election results this afternoon as staff members completed their first day of post-Election Day ballot counting from Tuesday's general election.

Updates posted to the Registrar's website, <http://www.acgov.org/rov/>, reflect an additional 25,670 ballots that were counted today. Registrar of Voters Tim Dupuis is estimating that about 75,000 vote-by-mail ballots still need to be counted from Tuesday's election. About 24,000 provisional ballots still need to be processed as well.

The latest results show that Alameda County has counted ballots submitted by 254,898 voters.

The vote count is set to resume on Friday morning and Dupuis says the next update of Alameda County's election results is planned for 5 p.m. Friday. Dupuis said his staff will continue its work this weekend and that 5 p.m. updates will be posted to the Registrar's website each day until ballot counting is completed. Vote counting is likely to continue into next week, Dupuis said.

Under State law, Alameda County has until December 2 to certify its election results.
