The Alameda County Registrar of Voters Office released its unofficial final election results this evening as staff members completed ballot counting for the November 4 General Election.

Updates posted to the Registrar's website, <http://www.acgov.org/rov/>, show that a total of 366,599 ballots were cast, bringing the voter turnout in Alameda County to just above 45 percent.

The popularity of voting by mail continues to grow, with more than 62 percent of Alameda County's voters submitting mail-in ballots for the General Election.

Registrar of Voters Tim Dupuis said that with all ballots counted, his staff is now moving into the 1 percent manual audit of the County election results, as required by law. That audit is likely to run into next week.

Under State law, Alameda County has until December 2 to certify its election results.
