II. Title IV-E Waiver Demonstration Project Update

Michelle Love, Assistant Agency Director, Children & Family Services, Social Services Agency presented a PowerPoint presentation on the Title IV-E Waiver Demonstration Project update.

The Title IV-E Waiver Demonstration Project allowed counties to capture Federal and State funding that would be lost due to declining caseloads. Waivers also allowed for creativity and innovation in addressing issues experienced by both families involved in the child welfare system and the child welfare system as a whole.

Now that the Title IV-E Waiver has ended, the Social Services Agency has begun the process of trying to sustain services, including: “Right sizing” contracts, reviewing outcomes and utilization of programs and reducing the number of contracts where the Agency is able.

Federal legislation opportunities for funding include the Families First Prevention Services Act, which provides opportunities to fund evidenced based, and well supported prevention programs.
